

Nicole Ebber

Nicole joined our team in September 2007. She is responsible for marketing and research issues. She studied Information Economics and examined “the chances and risks of Creative Commons licences for the management of non-governmental organisations” in her diploma thesis. That was when she fell for open content licences and started sharing her passion with other CC-interested people.

She takes part in various (un-)conferences and blogs at antischokke.de and zeitgeisty.cc.

Her way to mixxt:

„... began with numerous web meetings and events, like the re:publica, BarCamp or Web Monday, where I frequently met Oliver. He noticed my dedication and asked whether I would be interested in working with mixxt... “
